3) Narrative explaining the Database and relationships.

Database Narrative

The Meijer database is designed to track customers, stores, products, inventory, and purchases. The customer table stores customer information like their names, phone numbers, and pins. The store table represents the different store locations. The supplier table stores the information about companies that provide products. Category table groups the products into types. The product table holds the product details which include price, category, and supplier.

Relationships

Each Product is linked to one category and one supplier. The StoreProduct is a junction table that tracks inventory levels of products at each store. This creates a many-to-many relationship between store and product. A customer can make many purchases. Each purchase occurs at one store. Purchase details connect purchases to products and records quantity. This forms a many-to-many relationship between purchase and product.

Purpose

The purpose of this structure is to allow tracking of inventory per store, recording customer purchases, managing suppliers and product categories, and supporting retail transaction history.

4) Include all scripts to install and populate the database(Due to the size of the dataset, the population script is included in full below.)
